

FALSE FRIENDS

A false friend is a word or expression that has a similar form to one in a person's native language, but a different meaning (e.g., the English word 'fabric' means 'tela', not 'fábrica', in Spanish).

Correct the underlined false friends:

1. Which career are you going to study at university, Jack?
2. I wish he'd stop presuming about his new sports car.
3. I thought her uncle was a bit rare but everyone else seemed to think he was normal.
4. Actually, food manufacturers use corn syrup instead of sucrose to sweeten candy bars.
5. The fabric of the dress was wonderfully suave.
6. Did you remember to remove my coffee? I can't taste the sugar.
7. Taxis charge a higher tariff at night and on holidays.
8. How many people assisted the meeting last night?
9. Kirsten ate some prawns that were off and was intoxicated.
10. I've tried to be comprehensive with your little brother but he's always so cheeky.
